BANKING AND FINANCIAL SERVICES (MINOR)

Position yourself for a high-paying career in banking. Bank executives are actively recruiting management talent - especially in small towns and rural communities. Salaries at local and regional banks are very competitive compared to local income. The EKU Banking Program is partnering with local banks to create internships and scholarships to develop banking managers for their area.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Management opportunities abound for students in Accounting, Computer Science, Economics, Finance, Human Resources, Mathematics, Network Security, Public Relations, and Statistics to name a few. A minor in Banking and Financial Services will position you for this promising career path.

Recent turmoil in financial markets has demonstrated the need for knowledge of monetary policy and financial services in all professions. Regardless of your career industry, you will benefit from an understanding of the financial system.

- For business or non-business majors.
- Understand the financial system and its economic impact.
- Expand your professional network in the banking industry.
- Local/community bank co-ops and internships.
- Grow your career in this high-demand field.
